1 History and Foundation of EAFIT University

Origins

EAFIT University was founded in 1960 in Medellín, Colombia, as a response to the region's need for professionals trained in business and administration. The initiative was led by a group of entrepreneurs and academics who envisioned a modern institution capable of linking education with industry. Its name originally stood for 'Escuela de Administración, Finanzas y Tecnologías'.

Early Growth

During its early years, EAFIT focused primarily on business administration and industrial engineering. The university quickly became recognized for its practical approach to education, combining theoretical knowledge with real-world applications. Its first programs were designed to meet the needs of local companies, creating a bridge between academia and the private sector.

Expansion and Recognition

By the 1980s, EAFIT had expanded its academic offering to include humanities, law, and social sciences. In 1971, it gained official university status, marking a key milestone in its institutional development. Over the following decades, EAFIT invested heavily in research, internationalization, and technological infrastructure.

Modern Vision

Today, EAFIT University is one of Colombia's leading higher education institutions. It maintains a strong commitment to innovation, entrepreneurship, and global collaboration. Its campus in Medellín is known for its integration of architecture, sustainability, and open spaces that foster creativity and academic excellence.